Michigan Prison Problem Faces Legislature At Next Session

MICHIGAN'S PRISONS are bulging at the seams and everyone is looking for a solution. "That's the trouble. Everyone has a different idea on how to solve the problem," said Rep. Adrian de Boom (R-Owosso).

De Boom represents one of the major legislative groups. They have separate and sometimes conflicting plans about the prisons. It is now a matter of how much money they will cost the taxpayers.

Legislators want something that will be effective but economical; prison officials are interested in security and rehabilitation of inmates.

The "de Boom group" is interested in medium or minimum security installations away from centers of population — with wire fences and barriers and low cost.

"We don't want any more prisons below the Bay City-Muskegon line," he said.

He figures that a "master plan," combining a new minimum security prison, shifting of population in existing prisons, and other factors could solve the problem for about $3,500,000.

Other legislators figure a 600-man prison at Ionia, an addition to Ionia State Reformatory, will be a stop-gap for a few years.

To that end, they appropriated $100,000 for new prison plans and specified that it should not cost more than $2,650,000.

"We won't get a 600-man prison for that kind of money," said Corrections Director Gus Harrison.

Building officials in the Capitol suggest that the construction cost will go somewhere near $4,000,000, and still not give the prisons the extra space they need.

The new Corrections Commission, created in 1953, is a 12-man body which will study the strain of their problem but increase it for the taxpayers.

They believe that Michigan's prison population will exceed 10,000 before spring and will not get smaller — so why not build for the future?

The 12,000-inmate figure is taken from recommendations by the American Prison Association despite the knowledge that the Federal prison system sticks by the 600-man figure.

Two 600-man prisons? "Too expensive right now," said one legislator. "We might not need them both anyway."

Despite this sentiment the Corrections Commission came up with tentative plans for a multi-million dollar long-range building program.

It includes, besides the new prison, a women's prison, a separate reception center for youthful offenders at Jackson, more camps and other installations.

Michigan now houses all its women prisoners at Detroit House of Corrections and pays a fee for their upkeep.

TELEPHONE USERS face the chance they will pay more for their calls in the next few months. Michigan Bell Telephone Co. is before the Public Service Commission for another rate increase, this time $22,000,000 a year.

Company spokesmen loathe the big figures and suggest that it be explained as three cents a day per telephone.

Some cities are fighting the proposed increase, figuring that rates already are pretty high, but the company has said it is not getting the profit to which it is entitled, 6.5 per cent on its investment.

The same rate request was turned down flatly last May 11 by the commission.

Shortly after, Michigan Bell became tangled in a labor dispute which ended when the company agreed to increase wages. That's why it's back with its same petition.

In addition, company spokesmen say that the profit margin is so thin that investors are not buying their stock. They display reports from other utilities and industries to back up their position.

Assistant Attorney General Robert J. Derengowski won a point, however.

He rammed through a motion which will empower the commission — two Democrats and one Republican — to expand the consideration to determine whether the company's existing rates are too high.

"We will make our findings known when we make the decision on the rate increase," said Chairman John H. McCarthy.

SAVE OUR MICHIGAN ELK

Deer hunters working north and east of Vanderbilt, all the way to Black Lake and Gribble are very likely to spot one or more of our herd of elk in Michigan — the only herd of any size east of the Rocky Mountains. Every year a half dozen or more of these majestic animals are either mistaken for deer and shot, or wantonly killed by the trigger-happy variety of so-called sportsmen. Either, of course, is inexcusable.

May Have 300 in Herd
Game men in our Conservation Department, basing their figures on count from aircraft, believe that we may have as many as 300 elk roaming our Michigan range today.

Once upon a time tremendous numbers of elk ranged across Michigan—a native game animal abundant around Gladwin, Saginaw, Bay City and the Thumb area. This was wilderness country in those days, inhabited by a few Indian tribes who made good use of the heavy hides and meat of the elk.

With the encroachments of civilization the elk gradually disappeared from the scene.

Reestablished in 1918
Long after the last native elk had vanished the Conservation Department released some 18 animals in the Pigeon River country back in 1918. The herd grew very slowly, grazing across the valleys in summer, stripping bark from trees in the winter. Occasional disease struck the herd, causing blindness especially in the young calves. The introduction of salt blocks in the range, fortified with cobalt, bolstered the health of our elk to some degree, and today the population seems to have steadied somewhat.

Easily Identified

There's no reason for mistaking an elk for a deer. The adult elk may weigh up to 1000 pounds—almost 4 times as much as a very large deer. The bull carries a spread of magnificent antlers which may be as much as five feet long! The cows are shaped unlike any white-tailed deer—with heavy rear haunches and a broad head. Obviously the large size of the animal should be enough to make any hunter stop and look twice before pulling the trigger. Elk are far less "spooky" than deer, standing curiously to watch a hunter approach.

So keep an eye out for Michigan elk while you're deer hunting this fall. A good sportsman will help build this herd by guarding it against marauders.

The Minimum Wage Problem . . .

When the next Congress meets, a proposal to again increase the Federal minimum wage probably will be introduced. To many, this will seem a wise and humanitarian goal. Yet there are vitally important considerations involved that must not be overlooked out of a desire to help the lowest-paid groups of wage-earners.

For one thing, too high a minimum wage actually undermines the interests of those it is designed to aid. Many examples could be cited, of which retailing, particularly in the smaller communities, is one. Totally unskilled people are hired to do odd jobs. Their value to the store operator is, of course, small. Yet in this way they get the experience that will qualify them for more responsible and better-paid positions. If the wage is hiked too high, the employer has no choice but to pare employment to the limit. Thus, there are fewer jobs for the unskilled, and fewer opportunities to gain the experience that leads to advancement.

For another thing, boosting the minimum wage can result in wage increases all along the line — and thus start the forces of inflation going once more. The reason why that is so is simple. When the minimum wage goes up, the gap between it and the wage received by more skilled workers narrows. The latter group, humbly enough, feels that it is entitled to maintain the gap, so it demands a jump. And then the inflationary spiral is on its way.

For a third thing, a Federal minimum wage does not, and cannot take into account the substantial difference in living costs and other conditions that exist between different sections of the country, and between the great cities and the little towns.

The minimum wage, like all other such legislation, should be studied in the light of what its effect will be on the country as a whole, and everyone who lives in it.

Inseparable . . .

When the boys and girls go away to college, they remain interested in the personal items about their home town that only the local newspaper can provide. As a matter of fact, this is true with all of us when we are away from home.

As the Santa Paula, California, News expressed it, "News is a precious commodity and nothing quite satisfies the public appetite for it like daily and weekly newspapers."

The local paper chronicles the society news and club activities; publishes births and deaths; heralds the changes in the weather; records court proceedings and real estate transactions; keeps businessmen informed on economic issues and crop conditions; provides recipes and household tips; gives the latest women's fashions and styles; covers the doings in sports; and provides a handy display of the local shopping scene which can save the consumer many steps—a review of home town activity unobtainable elsewhere.

Last but not least the country editor is constantly on guard to preserve the freedom of the press, thereby helping to preserve our political and religious privileges.

46 YEARS AGO

C. J. Hathaway left Wednesday afternoon to join his wife at Orion, to spend Thanksgiving. While away he will visit Detroit to purchase the balance of his holiday stock.

look over the timber and mineral holdings of the estate of David Ward. With his experience and hustling proclivities we expect he will do good work.

The slaughter of the "innocents" can continue but a few days longer. It has been terrible for the past weeks. It is estimated that over two hundred have been killed in this county.

Joe Burton, Wingard and Ehrhardt of Grayling and Mr. H. H. Hawley, M. A. Delino and H. J. Seligman of Morenci, Mich., spent ten days with J. A. Willets, 7 miles north of Johannesburg hunting, capturing squirrels, partridges, deer and bear. We have no space to publish details of the hunt, but anyone of the party will tell you all about it and Wingard has photos of the game.

The new Series 60 Special, representing the standard 1955 model, features a new Florentine-curved roof line, a new slender center post, and a great new 260-h.p. Cadillac engine.

CADILLAC for 1955

Presents the Most Beautiful and Finest Performing Motor Cars in Its History!

The spectacular new Eldorado, a dramatic interpretation of the new Cadillac styling, offers many unique features, including a new 270-h.p. Cadillac engine.

This is one of the most significant new-car announcements in Cadillac history.

For it introduces to the world's motorists the most magnificent creations in Cadillac's fifty-three years of motor car production.

Three new Cadillac series are offered for your consideration in 1955—the famous Series Sixty Special, the beautiful Series Sixty-Two, and the distinguished Series Seventy-Five . . . in addition to the spectacular new Eldorado.

They are, as you can readily see, magnificent in beauty—with a new, jewel-like grille and front-end assembly . . . with dramatic and graceful new sculptured side styling . . . and with added dignity and bearing in every detail.

They are magnificent, too, in performance. There is a new Cadillac engine, the most powerful ever offered in a production motor car . . . an improved Hydra-Matic Drive . . . advanced Cadillac Power Steering . . . and, as an option at extra cost, refined Cadillac Power Braking. And they are magnificent in luxury . . . to a degree unusual even for Cadillac. Their interiors are almost unbelievably beautiful . . . and they are offered in a remarkably wide selection of gorgeous new fabrics and leathers.

Beyond any question, these new Cadillac creations represent a new Standard of the World—and we urge you to see and inspect them today in our showroom.

You will be most welcome—and we know you will find your visit one of the most interesting experiences of your motoring life!

SMALL BUSINESS

By C. WILSON HARDER

It is difficult to ever establish accurate figures on national unemployment.

But whether total now stands at 3 or 6 million is minor point against long range prospect, because the climate for increased unemployment exists.

A significant study was made recently by British economist Graham Hutton. While he probably did not read into his findings warning to American economic health, C. W. Harder his figures appear accurate.

Hutton states, "60 years ago an American industrial worker turned out roughly the same amount in a day as a worker in Britain, Germany or France, and enjoyed broadly the same standard of living. Today he turns out from 2 to 5 times as much and 8 hours work buys for an American from 1 1/2 to 4 times the quantity of goods that 8 hours work buys for a British or West European worker."

Thus to be equal with 1904, average American industrial worker today should be able to buy 20 to 25% more goods.

Of course, many say American worker with autos, television, et al, has world's highest living standard, so why the concern?

While this point is not argued, on the other hand, as every businessman knows, you cannot in the long run beat percentages. And thereby hinges the concern.

As it appears from this study, 20 to 25% of U. S. workers' productive capacity is being phoned off. Naturally, while a British economist would not touch upon this subject, it is quite likely these siphoned off amounts are about equal to cost of present U. S. multi-billion dollar foreign aid programs.

Paraphrasing Gen. MacArthur's "In war there is no substitute for victory," in a free economy there is no substitute for consumption.

Detroit auto plants, Chicago television plants, New England textile mills cannot hire people to turn out goods for which there are no buyers.

It is a delicate balance, that is easily upset by development of even a few monopolies, even limited imports of cheaply produced foreign imports, by government diverting a part of productivity to world boondoggling.

The American system does not encompass principle of "ever normal granary" but is rather expressed by the ever full garbage can. And this latter symbol of waste has been focal point for rallying of socialists and communists in and out of Washington who have worked for so many years to march America in lock-step with rest of world.

Perhaps government owned monopolies, or government encouraged monopolies can so operate there is no waste.

But as all dictators have found, including the Kremlin, in an economy without waste, eventually there develops a surplus of people which must either be supported at state expense, liquidated, or sent to Siberia. But for over 24 years American leadership has failed to understand fact that free American enterprise system cannot be compared to anything else existing in world so lacking courage to stand alone, every effort is made to get American system to conform to rest of world. It's something akin to a doctor injecting himself with tuberculosis germs so he can be just as sick as his patient.

and for the assignment and distribution of the residue of said estate.

Is Ordered, That the 3rd day of December, 1954, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, at said Probate Office, be and is hereby appointed for examining and allowing said account and hearing said petition.

It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, once in each week for three weeks consecutively, previous to said day of hearing, in the Crawford County Avalanche, a newspaper printed and circulated in said County.

Propose Game Law Changes

Next step for the conservation commission's 38-point program of proposed conservation law changes is state legislative consideration.

The commission discussed the program for the coming legislative year at a recent meeting. It included requests that the legislature:

1. Change the general trout season opening date from the last Saturday in April to the second Saturday in May and that the closing date be shifted from the second Sunday in September to Labor Day;
2. Authorize a number of areas management of various wildlife species such as quail and muskrat;
3. Continue commission discretionary authority over the lower peninsula deer herd;
4. Authorize an annual $2 windshield sticker for sale to state parks patrons to provide revenue for parks improvement;
5. Repeat the fox bounty, and
6. Provide an open season on black squirrels.

The commission also asked department workers to study the possibility of removing creel limits on bluegills, sunfish, warmouth and rock bass, crappies and perch.

Also included in the program were requests for several changes in commercial fishing laws and clarification of phrasing in certain statutes.

HOUSEWIVES GO for OIL HEAT

For a modern fully-automatic heating fuel, America's homemakers prefer oil

First of all, oil heat is clean heat . . . keeps the housework down, and indoor air warm and healthier for all.

What's more, oil heat is uniform, dependable, weather-proof heat . . . always at peak efficiency regardless of outdoor temperatures.

Safety is another important feature of this fully-automatic fuel. It burns only when atomized and properly mixed with air.

Oil can reach you wherever you live—and you have your choice of independent suppliers for America's most popular home-heating fuel.

Strange Animal Is Pigmy Deer

The pint-sized deer that state game workers recently captured in Southern Crawford County is apparently nothing more than a midget or pigmy.

"Nature plays tricks like this sometimes," says Dr. E. C. Whitlock, in charge of state game research. "It seems to be simply a stunted white-tailed deer."

The strange little animal, standing only two feet high, was captured in the wild near Houghton Lake wildlife experimental station late last week.

It has a white coat but is not an albino; the eyes and muzzle are dark-pigmented as in normal deer. The midget is a six-months old female. A normal deer that age stands three to four feet high.

The animal is being held at the experiment station for study.

All this - and more miles per gallon too!

Be sure to test out the phenomenal effect of "variable pitch propellers" in Dynaflo Drive!

MAYBE—among the upcoming crop of new 1955 models—there's another car with an advance that can hold a candle to this one. But we doubt it. We doubt it because nowhere—among the rumors of what's cooking in automotive laboratories—is there anything to compare with what's actually happened at Buick.

It all started with the fact that modern air liners get two big advantages because they can change the pitch of their propellers. First, they get off the ground hundreds of feet sooner than they used to. Second, they can stretch their gaso-line by setting propeller blades at just the right "pitch" for cruising.

MILTON BERLE STARS FOR BUICK
See the Buick-Berle Show at the Motor City Convention

So Buick engineers asked themselves—"If you can do it with air, why can't you do it with oil—the oil inside a Dynaflo Drive?"

And to make a long story short—they could, and they did.

They designed and engineered the propeller-like blades inside the "stator" of a Dynaflo Drive so they can change their pitch as much as 75 degrees.

That provides one setting for more—miles-per-gallon, and another for an instant safety-surge of power when it's needed.

Allyou have to do is push the accelerator pedal down to the last half-inch beyond the full throttle position—and a-way you go!

Of course, there's a lot more to make a visit to our showrooms the "must" of the new-car year.

There's a step-up in styling as sensational as the step-up in power.

And the step-up in horsepower is this: 236 in the ROADMASTER, SUPER and CENTURY—188 in the low-priced SPECIAL.

Pay-off on progress!

Buicks today go a lot farther on a gallon of gas, thanks to constant improvement in Dynaflo and in engine design. Even the new 236-hp ROADMASTER averages 4.8 more miles per gallon than Buicks of six years ago.

But the thrill of the year is Buick's latest engineering "first"—and what it does for the man or woman who drives the latest and greatest Dynaflo Drive.

*Standard on Roadmaster, optional at extra cost on other Series.
